

Riddle-icious

1. If you eat it over-under, butter dribbles down your chin. If you eat it sideways, though, sometimes you might miss a row.

2. To folks in Maine, they are red and round, and you can find them underground. In Idaho, they're brown and big, but still grow underground. You dig?

3. What food stays hot no matter how cold it is?

4. What fruit is green on the outside, red on the inside, and spits a lot?

5. You peel the outside, boil the inside, nibble on the outside, and throw the inside away.

6. What vegetable begins with a Q?

7. How can you divide six potatoes among seven people?

8. What vegetable is always tired?

9. What room can be eaten?

10. If you threw a melon into the air, what vegetable would come down?

11. What kind of fruit can you sleep on?

12. What's worse than finding a worm in your apple?
