

SINSINAWA MOUND

COLLABORATIVE FARM

Sinsinawa Mound,

located in the driftless area of Southwest Wisconsin, is a unique bioregion which includes wetlands, prairie, woodlands, and agriculture. Here, present and future generations deepen their understanding of just relationships with the Earth.

The Dominican Sisters of Sinsinawa, a congregation of Catholic Sisters, was founded in 1847 to minister to the farmers and miners through education. Working in partnership with others, the Sisters are committed to farming and protection of the natural environment of these 450 acres.

Sinsinawa Mound includes 12 acres dedicated to supporting beginning farmers in the tristate area.

Cultivating farmers to grow healthy food and build a vibrant community

Welcoming Beginning Farmers

About Us

The Sinsinawa Mound Collaborative Farm assists beginning farmers in their quest to access land and develop a thriving business. We mentor farmers from the tri-state region on land stewardship and organic production to promote a healthy, vibrant regional food system. We are located near Dubuque, Iowa on a 450 acre farm owned and operated by the Dominican Sisters.

Opportunities

- Individual plots up to 1/2 acre
- Shared access to infrastructure (water, tools, etc.)
- Classes on organic farming and creating a business plan
- Mentorship by an experienced farmer
- Marketing support
- An inroad to the local food system

Criteria

- Less than 10 years farming experience
- Love of Earth
- Willingness to farm organically
- Desire to practice good land stewardship
- Openness to learning and sharing with peers

Sponsorship

You can be a part of this venture. Your individual or corporate donation will support new, low-resourced farmers. We welcome equipment as well as monetary donations.
