

Honey Scotcheroos

Honey from Loess Hills Honey
Recipe from Cali Westergard

Ingredients

- 1 C sugar
- 1 C Loess Hills Honey
- 1 C peanut butter
- 6 C Rice cereal
- 1 C butterscotch chips
- 1 C chocolate chips

Instructions

Spray a 9 x 13 pan with cooking spray. Set aside.
In a large sauce pan, bring the honey and sugar to a boil over high heat. As soon as the mixture boils, remove from heat.
Add peanut butter and mix well.
Add rice cereal to the peanut butter, sugar, honey mixture and mix. Spread mixture into the 9 x 13 pan. Immediately sprinkle the butterscotch and chocolate chips over the top. Using the back of a spoon, spread evenly over the top as the chips melt.

“I really like the honey sticks. Some people even put them in their tea.” –
Becky Davis

Meet Loess Hills Honey LLC.

Loess Hills Honey LLC's Becky Davis is just about as sweet as the honey that she sells. Becky was first introduced into the bee keeping business by Mike Divis around 2010 and has developed a passion for it ever since. During Becky's early years, Loess Hills Honey LLC used to have teaching classes for hobbyist and others interested in learning or getting involved with the bee business. In the classes, Becky and Mike would teach people about the bees and help them acquire the proper equipment and bees. In the fall, they would help them pull the honey from the hives.

The Honey & Other Products

Some of the products that Loess Hills Honey LLC sells range from your normal honey to lotions, lip balm and more! One of Becky's favorite products that she sells is the honey sticks. “The honey sticks are a huge hit with the kids; they just love them,” claims Becky. The honey sticks come in all different flavors ranging from basic honey flavor to blueberry and even sour apple. Becky sells pollen, which is a top seller because it helps with people's allergies. The lotions are also a big hit among customers. According to Becky, the natural soothing power of the honey is great for people with eczema and shingles.
